A Compendium of Useful Information

Old West Boomtowns -- Animas Forks, Colorado

Animas Forks, Colorado:

A bustling mining camp in the 1870s, Animas Forks, Colorado, was abandoned in the 1920s. High in the Colorado Rockies, about 12 miles northeast of the mining outpost-turned-tourism-machine known as Silverton, Animas Forks is a ghost town for ghost town purists. It's remote, it's somewhat hard to reach, it's well-preserved, and it has been abandoned for a long time — since the early 1920s, to be exact.

The story of Animas Forks is similar to other Western boomtowns: Prospectors set up shop in the 1870s, and in the next years the mining camp's population rapidly swelled, as did amenities. At one point, Animas Forks was the bustling home to saloons, assay offices, stores, boarding houses, a mill and several hundred residents who decamped each winter for less frigid Silverton, and returned each spring. Fifty years later, it was all gone.

Today, under the stewardship of the Bureau of Land Management, Animas Fork is just one of many spectacular sights — waterfalls, mountain meadows, bighorn sheep — along the Alpine Loop, an unpaved, 65-mile backcountry byway, much of which must be traversed in a four-wheel drive vehicle.

FACTS:

Animas Forks is an extinct mining town in San Juan County, Colorado. The area is managed by the Bureau of Land Management. At an elevation of 11,185 feet, Animas Forks is one of the highest mining camps in the North America.

What remains of "Downtown" Animas Forks

Location:

Animas Forks is located on a system of roads known as the Alpine Loop, a 65-mile system of unpaved roads, which connects the small mountain towns of Lake City, Ouray, and Silverton. Most of the land in the area is managed by either the U.S. Forest Service or the Bureau of Land Management. The Alpine Loop is visited by over 100,000 people each year. Animas Forks, at an elevation of 11,200 feet, is more than two miles above sea level.

The unimproved road from Silverton to Animas Forks is passable in summer by two-wheel drive vehicles. The road beyond Animas Forks, over Engineer Pass to Lake City, may require four-wheel drive. Low clearance cars will find the Alpine Loop extremely difficult or impossible.

History:

The town's first log cabin was built in 1873, and by 1876, the community had become a bustling mining community. At that time the town contained 30 cabins, a hotel, a general store, a saloon, and a post office. By 1883, 450 people lived in Animas Forks, and in 1882, a newspaper, the Animas Forks Pioneer, began publication, and lasted until October 1886. Every fall the residents of Animas Forks migrated en-masse to the warmer town of Silverton. In 1884, a 23-day blizzard inundated the town with 25 feet of snow, and the residents had to dig tunnels to get from building to building. Mining, speculation and processing mills helped Animas Forks grow.

Abandoned Building

Decline:

When mining profits began to decline, investment in Animas Forks was no longer justified. Although mining made a brief 1904 rebound with the construction of the Gold Prince Mill, the town's mining days were nearing an end. The Silverton Northern Railroad built to the area in 1896, and stimulated interest in mining again, but the railroad never reached its expectations. The Gold Prince Mill closed in 1910, and in 1917 most of the mill's major parts were removed for a new facility in near-by Eureka. The mill's dismantling signaled the beginning of the end for Animas Forks. The town was a ghost town by the 1920s.

Today:

The site continues as a tourist attraction. A Colorado State Historical Fund grant to San Juan County, in cooperation with the Bureau of Land Management, provided for stabilization of the remaining structures in 1997 and 1998. In 2011, the townsite was listed on the National Register of Historic Places, which opened up opportunities for additional funding. The initial stabilization effort of the late 1990s was followed up with a comprehensive restoration of the buildings in 2013–2014. Work identified in the 2009 Historic Structures Assessment was completed under two subsequent grants from the State Historical Fund, beginning in 2013. Work was completed in 2014, just in time for the recognition of the 25th Anniversary of the establishment of the Alpine Loop Scenic Byway.

The site was managed collaboratively by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and San Juan County, until a long-awaited land swap was recently completed in 2009. The BLM is now the sole owner of the Townsite, and provides interpretive brochures and maps at an adjacent parking area. Entry into the buildings is unrestricted. The nine standing buildings within the Townsite have been stabilized and restored, repairing floors, walls, windows, and doors, to secure the envelope of each building. Cedar shingle roof sheathing has been restored on several of the buildings, along with structural repairs and improvements to the drainage around the structures, and across the site. The jail structure, the oldest building on the site, has had its gable roof reconstructed as part of the second phase of the project, along with new interpretive signage installed in 2014.

Climate

Bodie is a rare example of the dry-summer subarctic climate, with hot-to-freezing summers and long, snowy winters, and is part of USDA Plant Hardiness Zone 5. Winds can sweep across the valley at close to 100 miles per hour, and nights remain cold even through the summer, often dropping well below freezing throughout the year. Bodie has an average of 303 nights below freezing per year, and no month has ever been completely frost-free.

The harsh weather is due to a particular combination of high altitude (8,400 feet), and a very exposed plateau, with little in the way of a natural surrounding wall to protect the long, flat piece of land from the elements.

Plenty of firewood was needed to keep residents warm through the long winters. Bodie is not located in a forest, so lumber had to be imported from Bridgeport, Benton, Carson City, or Mono Mills. The winter of 1878 – 79 was particularly harsh and claimed the lives of many residents.

The Model 24 competes with the Stevens 311 and Savage/Fox Model B as an affordable, utility SXS and a total of over 116,200 were Mfgd. The Model 24 is a true hammerless gun, as opposed to having concealed hammers like most double guns, since it is striker fired. smooth black walnut stock with lacquer finish, double triggers, and spring powered extractors that elevates the shells when the gun is opened. It has a clean breech face and is held closed by a single underbolt, that engages a notch in the double barrel lumps. In the area between the 24's dual lumps is a cocking slide and the extractor. The Model 24 is about as wide through the breech and receiver as a SXS gun can be. The weight is about 7-1/2 pounds. It is a 12 Ga gun with 30" barrels. It measures 46-1/2" in overall length and has a 14-1/4" length of pull. Approximate drop is 1-1/2" at comb and 2-1/2" at heel. $500

Six Stages

We shoot six stages at Tusco. A few people have told us that they drive a good distance to shoot at Tusco and would like to shoot as much as possible.

Obviously we only have room for five shooting bays. So what we do is shoot the first stage you start on twice. Consider it a warm up stage. Only five stages will be scored. You can take your best time on your first stage. If you don't want to shoot it twice you do not have to. This would provide more shooting for our shooters.

New SASS Magazine

With the new release of the SASS Quarterly Cowboy Chronicle, I once again would like to start collecting any unwanted issues of the magazine. We will use these for our promotional events, like our Tusco Long Riders' Day at Kames Sports. Please either black out or cut off your name and address or I will do it before they are passed out. Thank you!

Facebook Page

When you make a post about Tusco or share pictures on Facebook, include #TuscoLongRiders. Let everyone see what we are all about.

A little bit about us

Jim & I have always wanted a family of our own. Although we love our 5 fur kids, we long for a baby. After learning we were unable to conceive a child, Jim and I decided to pursue the adoption of a newborn. Adoption costs are astronomical (anywhere from 25k to 50k or higher) and although we were able to raise some with our savings, GoFundMe page, and church donations, we are still lacking the funds needed to apply for a match. We decided to take our love of crafting and open a side business to hopefully raise some more funds for our future family. Designs By Scamper is a tribute to our pup Scamper who passed away in 2015 from cancer.
